

RECONNECTIVE KIDS

An interview with Dr. Eric Pearl on 21st century healing

BY CATHI CUREN

Editor's note: The concluding Part 2 of this interview can be found online at SouloftheCities.net

Dr. Eric Pearl walked away from one of the most successful chiropractic practices in Los Angeles when he and others started witnessing miraculous healings. Since that time, he has committed himself to imparting the light and information of the Reconnective Healing process through extensive lectures and seminars about "The Reconnection." Dr. Pearl's work is being studied throughout the world and his book, The Reconnection: Heal Others, Heal Yourself, has been translated in 30 languages. To date he has taught more than 40,000 Reconnective Healing practitioners in more than 60 countries.

I recently interviewed Dr. Eric Pearl at the 8th annual Conscious Life Expo in Los Angeles.

What is The Reconnection?

Dr. Eric Pearl: The Reconnection, based on what is being demonstrated and the research being done, seems to be a new level of healing that we have not had on the planet before. The Reconnection allows us to completely transcend our energy healing techniques; not having to learn any complicated steps or worrying about moving your hands clockwise, or counterclockwise, pulling up, or pulling down. At the same time as it allows us to transcend the techniques, it allows us to access much, much more.

For example, little Demitrios from Thessaloniki, Greece, had cerebral palsy and couldn't walk or speak and was scheduled for surgery, and after one session with the healing he now walks, plays and runs. His father is a prominent M.D., and his mother a nurse practitioner. Both parents, along with his physical therapist, speech therapist and occupational therapist, attended the seminars to learn how to do it after they saw Demitrios' healing.

The funny thing is that there's a challenge for adults in learning this work, and the challenge for adults is the ego that they've developed over the years. They like to come into the seminars and say, "Well, I don't need to take the first level." Or, "I'm already advanced. I've studied this and I'm a master in that, and a grand master in the other," and their egos interfere with them being able to access the purity of this work.

They wonder why some practitioners are able to bring it through so well. The practitioners who bring it through the best are the ones who very often don't come from any background in healing, so they don't have to unlearn anything. They don't come in with the fears of taking on negative energy, or thinking they need to shake it off or spray themselves with alcohol or anything like that.

What does all of this have to do with teaching kids?

Dr. Pearl: We recently developed a program called Reconnective Kids! where we teach children how to do this healing. We have found children access healing fairly instantly. Whereas it takes a weekend to teach this to an adult, children can learn this within a couple of hours.

One of our first experiences that I loved in doing this was down with the Maori children in New Zealand. The Maori are the native indigenous people of New Zealand. They have their own special tracts of land for their communities that they received through their negotiations with the government. When we went down,

"My parents always told me I was something else, but this was probably not what they had in mind."

DR. ERIC PEARL

they invited us to come to their land, which they call Marae. While we were there, we noticed that their school systems were very much like the old-time school systems we used to have in the Western U.S., where it was just one big class with a large age range. The age range of the students was between 4 to 15 years old, and we could tell from the conversation that the children were interested in the healing work that we were doing.

I taught a main seminar there for the public, and on my last day I was supposed to fly on to the next country. Instead, I extended my stay until later and I went down with someone to teach the children how to do this work. You would be shocked to witness this. To see a 4- or 5-year-old child begin to allow themselves to feel the work in their hands and to work on someone from a distance, even an adult who's lying down on a table – one of their teachers, one of their elders. As they learn to access this work, the adult bodies involuntarily go into jerking movements or repetitive patterns, and the child's mouth opens so wide you can hardly see anything but two chocolate eyes and a couple of ears.

Why do you think it's so easy for kids to learn this healing?

Dr. Pearl: Children learn this instantly because they don't come in with fear. They don't come in thinking that they need to protect themselves from something. They don't come in thinking that they need a special necklace or amulet to make themselves more. They already allow themselves to be 100 percent without thinking they need something external added in.

Kids are not worried about shaking themselves off or zipping up their etheric bodies to protect themselves from being taken over, or any of the other things that are fear-based holdovers that are in many of our energy healing techniques taught today.

So when a 4- or 5-year old child works with another person, and that person may have, for instance, had a stroke and lost the ability to use his arm, and suddenly he regains full use of his arm, the adults who witness this are all in shock. The child takes it as, "Oh well, one more part of my morning," and they move right forward.

This is the way healing should be today. 🦋

Read Part 2 of this interview at SouloftheCities.net. To learn more about Reconnective Kids! and the Reconnective Healing seminars, call 323.960.0012 or visit www.TheReconnection.com.

CATHI CUREN is a freelance writer and author of Parent Quest: Raising Kids for the Distance in an Instant World. She has spent more than 20 years researching the dynamics of the family, and promotes nurturing the "whole child" through Holistic Children Radio at holisticchildrenradio.homestead.com.

COPYRIGHT © 2010 CATHI CUREN. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.